March 6 - 8, 2009

Director: Steve Harper -- Music Director: Judy Hayward

Auditions: Sunday, Dec. 7, 2:00-5:00; Monday, Dec. 8, 7:00-10:00

Adam Guettel's (Light in the Piazza) Floyd Collins is a musical like no other on Broadway. Based on a true story from 1925, Collins follows a Kentucky farmer who seeks riches by trying to discover the largest cave in the region, gets trapped, and becomes the subject of an intense media circus (happening just above him on ground level). Adam Guettel has created an infectious musical filled with Americana (plenty of bluegrass and Aaron Copland references in the music), smart lyrics, and true depth.

From the Director ...

Last year marked the 50th anniversary of the first publication of The Cat-in-the-Hat by Dr. Seuss (a.k.a. Theodor Seuss Geisel). That in itself is evidence of the significant impact and timeless nature that the Dr. Seuss stories have brought to the last several generations of readers, both young and young-at-heart. In recent years, many of these iconic Dr. Seuss characters have been brought to life in major motion picture films, yet even more proof that the life lessons that Dr. Seuss has so brilliantly woven into seemingly simple tales, transcends time, culture and socioeconomic status.

With Seussical, Stephen Flaherty and Lynn Ahrens have done an amazing job of combining over 18 of the Seuss books into one seamless, heartwarming story of unconditional love and commitment, sprinkled with laughter and tears.

It's taken over 50 volunteer actors, over 70 volunteer production crew members and literally hundreds of hours of their time so that we, the Actorsingers could bring this magical story to life. As creative artists we are often asked, "How can you dedicate so much of your time just to put on one show?" and I believe our long-time technical director Dennis Schneider puts it best when he says, "We do it all for the audience." So, on behalf of the Actorsingers volunteer cast and crew of Seussical, we want to say a big "Thank you!" to You, our beloved audience. We hope that if you like what you see that you will bring even more wonderful audience members for us to thank the next time.

- Marc Michael Murai
